Webster Bank, National Association, hereafter referred to as "Webster," "Webster Bank". The words "You," "I," and "Your" mean anyone who applies for a Webster Bank Home Equity Line of Credit.

All loans and lines of credit are subject to credit approval.

1. RATE AND OFFER INFORMATION: The Webster Home Equity Line of Credit Annual Percentage Rate (APR) is a variable rate and will be based on the highest Prime Rate + 0.99% (the Prime Rate is currently 3.50% APR as of 04/01/2016, found in the "Money Rates" section of The Wall Street Journal). The Prime Rate + 0.99% rate is available for customers opening home equity lines of credit for $200,000 or greater and meeting product credit qualifications covered below and assumes less than or equal to 70% Combined Loan to Value (CLTV). Other rates and terms are available for customers who do not meet the Prime + 0.99% requirements. As an example of payment, a 30-year line of credit of $50,000 at 3.00% APR would result in a monthly interest-only payment of $125.00; a 30-year line of credit of $50,000 at 4.74% APR would result in a monthly interest-only payment of $197.50; and a 30-year line of credit of $50,000 at 5.99% APR would result in a monthly interest-only payment of $249.58. As of 04/01/2016, rates ranged from Prime + 0.99% to Prime + 2.49%. Maximum rate that can apply is 21% APR. Minimum rate that can apply is 3.00% APR. Principal balance will not decrease if interest-only payments are made. The monthly payment will increase once the line draw period (10 years) ends since new payment will include principal and interest. Rate Discounts: Minimum rate is 3.00% APR. (A) A 0.25% Annual Percentage Rate (APR) reduction applies to applications taken between 04/22/2016 and 12/31/2016. Customers must both open and have payments auto-deducted from a Webster personal checking account. One time offer only. (B) A 0.25% interest rate reduction when automatic payments (ACH) are set up from a Webster Personal Checking Account. (C) A 0.25% interest rate reduction for possessing a Premier Checking account. Minimum opening deposit of $500 required. With a Premier Checking account, you can avoid a $20 monthly maintenance fee by keeping $10,000 in combined average checking, money market, and savings balances during your monthly statement period or $50,000 adding CD, home equity, and installment loan balances as of the end of your statement period. Rates and fees may vary by state and region; miscellaneous fees may apply. (D) A 0.50% interest rate reduction if, at loan closing, an initial disbursement of $25,000 or greater is to be used to pay off any non-Webster debts or to pay off any Webster non-real estate secured debts. Any Webster debts secured by real estate such as mortgages, home equity lines, or home equity loans would not qualify for the discount. Discount is reduced to 0.25% if initial disbursement is less than $25,000 but greater than $10,000. (E) A 0.25% interest rate reduction when the Home Equity Line of Credit is in first lien position. (F) A 0.25% interest rate reduction for Military. You must meet certain eligibility requirements to qualify for this program. Consult your Webster banker for details. Other Discounts: You may be eligible for additional Webster discounts (i.e., Bank at Work, etc.). Minimum rate is 3.00% APR. Appraisal: An appraisal will be required to assess the value of the home. This value will represent the full value of the home that Webster will use for calculating the Combined Loan to Value (CLTV) amount, which will impact the rates and lending options available. Restrictions: Home Equity Lines of Credit are available in CT, MA, RI, and Westchester County, NY with a minimum of $10,000 and maximum of $500,000. For owner-occupied properties with line amounts up to $500,000 there are no closing costs apart from hazard insurance, which is required. Line amounts over $250,000 may be subject to asset verification. This offer is only valid for owner-occupied 1-to-2-family homes and condominiums. This offer is not valid for investment properties, second homes, 3 – 4 (or more) family homes, co-ops, or high-rise condominiums. A prepayment penalty of $450 will apply if the line is closed within 3 years of opening for lines in CT, MA, and RI. For lines in NY, a prepayment penalty of $1,000 – $3,500 (based on line amount) will apply if the line is closed within 3 years of opening. Other Rates: Rates are determined based on credit qualifications and other factors, such as line amount, Combined Loan to Value (CLTV) and Webster relationship. Minimum line amount of $10,000. A $50 Annual Fee is assessed to all accounts, but will be waived for Premier Checking account customers. The APR you will receive is dependent on a variety of factors including household income, debts and other underwriting criteria. This offer expires on 12/31/2016.

SINGER SINEAD O'CONNOR SAFELY LOCATED IN CHICAGO SUBURB

Police said Irish pop star Sinead O'Connor was found safe Monday, hours after authorities reported her missing in a Chicago suburb, citing a concerned caller who told them the singer apparently had failed to return from a bicycle ride. O'Connor topped the music charts around the world 25 years ago with a cover of Prince's song "Nothing Compares 2 U." O'Connor once famously tore up a picture of Pope John Paul II on the "Saturday Night Live" television show, declaring "Fight the real enemy!" Comedian Arsenio Hall filed a defamation lawsuit May 6 against O'Connor, who accused him of supplying drugs to music legend Prince, whose death April 21 has prompted speculation about an overdose.

US COAST GUARD RESUMES PROBE OF EL FARO SHIP SINKING

2 Coast Guard investigators resumed a probe of last year's deadly sinking of the El Faro off the Bahamas, beginning two weeks of hearings to examine the cargo ship's operations, weather forecasts and regulatory oversight. Captain Eric Bryson, who helped launch the El Faro on its final voyage, told the Coast Guard's Marine Board of Investigation panel that the ship's captain had said he planned to "go out and shoot under" a storm brewing in the Caribbean. Bryson is among some two dozen experts set to testify during a second round of hearings on the worst cargo shipping disaster involving a U.S.-flagged vessel in more than three decades. REUTERS

TOP COURT REJECTS EXXON APPEAL IN CONTAMINATION CASE

3 The Supreme Court on Monday rejected Exxon Mobil Corp.'s appeal of a $236 million judgment against the oil company in a case brought by the state of New Hampshire over groundwater contamination linked to a gasoline additive. The justices left in place the New Hampshire Supreme Court's 2015 ruling upholding the judgment by a jury that in 2013 spurned Exxon's claims that the contamination linked to its fuel additive was not its fault but rather the fault of the local gas stations and storage facilities that spilled it. Exxon argued in its appeal that its due-process rights were violated because New Hampshire had not proved the company's liability for the alleged pollution at each individual site. REUTERS

Outside the Box returns in July with new focus on tech

The music and art festival will also celebrate innovation in Boston

Outside the Box is returning to Boston this summer with music, performing arts and a new component highlighting technology.

In addition to its 100-strong roster of performers, the free five-day festival is adding programming called "OTB Interactive" to celebrate the city's innovation community, organizers said Monday.

The festival this year will include an "Innovation Village" on Boston Common, along with networking events, off-site speakers and the "OTB Interactive Awards." The schedule of events hasn't been announced.

"It's the melding of art, culture and innovation that makes our city so exceptional," Susan Darian, Outside the Box's executive director, said at a news conference.

The festival is scheduled for July 13-17. Find more info on the OTB website.

Mayor Marty Walsh offered his support for the festival's new tech focus Monday morning, saying it would "showcase our thriving startup scene here in the city, providing another resource for entrepreneurs as America's most innovative city."

As for the music portion of the festivities, headliners this year are '90s hitmakers Smash Mouth and Daughtry, the "American Idol"-winner-helmed rock band.

Most of the acts will again be lesser known local talent and performers from around the world, according to Georgia Lyman, OTB's creative director. She said the full list of performers would be announced in the coming weeks.

"There are names that might be familiar already, and a lot more that you should keep your eye on," Lyman said.

Walsh also used the occasion to tout the city's freshly drafted cultural plan. Among other things, the lengthy plan calls for promoting "the city's rich cultural festivals."

Meanwhile, Ted Cutler, the wealthy benefactor who dreamed up the festival to bring art to the masses, said he's looking forward to OTB's return in July.

"We are inviting everybody — the haves, the have notes — to come and enjoy performing arts," he said, adding, "It's on me."

Who is the BRIGHAM NURSE?

- The Brigham Nurse cares for your baby in the neonatal intensive care unit
- The Brigham Nurse slept at the hospital during the worst blizzard season in 100 years

Now we need your support

The 3,300 registered nurses of Brigham and Women's Hospital, represented by the Massachusetts Nurses Association, will hold an informational picket outside the main entrance of the hospital at 75 Francis St. in Boston from 2:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. today.

Brigham nurses are negotiating a new contract with the hospital and Partners HealthCare. Despite the critical work nurses do at the Brigham, the hospital refuses to value them more than its bottom line. Partners made $2 billion in profits over the last five years and gave its top five executives a combined one-year, 23 percent raise worth $1.3 million. Yet nurses have been offered no across-the-board salary increase, even as the hospital tries to degrade the health insurance and benefits of new nurses.

If nurses are outside the hospital, something is wrong inside.

ATTACK ON HOMELESS

Boston men sentenced for beating homeless man before brother praised Trump

The pair of Boston brothers accused of beating a homeless man in August pleaded guilty Monday in Suffolk Superior Court

Scott and Steve Leader, of South Boston, had faced charges after police say they savagely beat and urinated on a 58-year-old homeless man they believed to be an immigrant, repeatedly striking him with a metal pole.

The incident was covered in national media after one brother, Scott, told police he thought the victim deserved to be beaten because he was homeless and Hispanic, and reportedly suggested to police officers he had been inspired by the rhetoric of Donald Trump.

"Donald Trump was right, all these illegals need to be deported," he said, according to police.

Scott was sentenced to three years in prison, according to a release from the Suffolk District Attorney's office Monday night. Steve was sentenced to 2½ years in prison.

After their release, they will both be required to serve three years probation, spending one year in a sober house. A judge also ordered them to serve 20 hours of community service.

Scott and Steve Leader PROVIDED

"This unprovoked attack on a sleeping man disgusted every prosecutor, victim advocate and trooper who worked on it," Suffolk DA Dan Conley said in a written statement. "State prison was the only appropriate sentence."

After the attack outside the JFK/UMass MBTA station in Dorchester, Trump told the Boston Globe "it would be a shame" if the story were true, adding that his supporters are "very passionate." SPENCER BUELL

Boston police are rounding up illegal dirt bikes, ATVs

Mayor Walsh calls stunt-inclined drivers "a danger to society."

SPENCER BUELL
@MetroBOS
spencer.buell@metro.us

Boston Mayor Marty Walsh had tough words Monday for Bostonians who have been stunt-driving dirt bikes and other all-terrain vehicles through the city's streets.

"Those guys riding their bikes, they're a danger to society, they're a danger to the people in the neighborhoods," Walsh told reporters Monday. "People in the neighborhoods are sick and tired of it, and we're cracking down on it."

Boston Police announced this weekend they would be going after drivers of recreational vehicles, who have been spotting popping wheelies and weaving through traffic in the city.

The effort led to the "mass arrest" of several people in Walpole on Sunday night, BPD said in a blog post on Monday.

Police worked with officers from several agencies to track down the drivers — who were described as Boston residents connected to a group called Boston Bike Life, BPD said on its website.

Fourteen people were arrested and seven issued summonses to appear at Wrentham District Court, police said. Officers also seized six motor vehicles and 11 recreational vehicles.

In a post Friday, Boston Police said they were initiating a "significant and substantial crackdown targeting the reckless and illegal operation of unregistered motor scooters, dirt bikes and recreational vehicles."

Confiscated vehicles BPD

The effort began Saturday and will continue over weekends this month, according to police, who said they have received "substantial complaints" about the vehicles from neighbors in Roxbury, Mattapan, Dorchester, Jamaica Plain and the South End.

Police Commissioner William Evans had this to say in a written statement after Sunday's arrests:

"This wide sweeping investigation was in direct response to numerous complaints from the communities we serve. I would like to thank all of the agencies involved who helped us take these dangerous operators off the streets. We will continue to take any and all steps necessary to ensure the safety of the law-abiding citizens of Boston."

Videos on YouTube posted with titles like "Boston Bike Life" and "Boston Bikelife" appear to show people doing stunts with dirt bikes on city streets.

Mass. sees spike in drivers ticketed for texting while driving

Massachusetts has seen a dramatic increase in the number of drivers ticketed for texting while driving since legislation was passed in 2010 banning the dangerous practice.

State and local police wrote 6,131 tickets for the offense last year, up from just 1,153 tickets in 2011, the first full year the ban was in place, according to the Boston Globe.

According to data from the state transportation department, people 40 and younger received the most tickets since 2010 — more than three-quarters of them.

A little more than half of those ticketed in the Bay State — 56.4 percent — were male drivers, which contradicts data from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration that show women tend to be more likely to text behind the wheel.

A woman texts on her cellphone while driving. ROLL CALL

THERE WERE 6,131 TICKETS ISSUED FOR TEXTING WHILE DRIVING IN 2015

The reason for the spike in tickets may be due to drivers' compulsive attachment to technology, according to Kara Macek, a Governors Highway Safety Association spokeswoman.

"As a culture, we are more and more 'addicted' to staying in touch at all times," Macek told the Globe.

The vigilance of police officers, who are now equipped with better tools for catching texting drivers, may also be a factor in the uptick in citations, Macek said.

Massachusetts man has first successful US penis transplant

The patient was expected to have normal urination possible within several weeks and sexual function in a span of weeks to months.

Massachusetts General Hospital NICOLAUS CZARNECKI

A 64-year-old man became the first in the United States to undergo a successful penis transplant in a procedure at Massachusetts General Hospital earlier this month, his doctors said on Monday.

Thomas Manning of Halifax, Massachusetts, had his penis amputated in 2012 when he was diagnosed with penile cancer.

He recently underwent a 15-hour surgery at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston during which a penis provided by a donor was attached.

Doctors said the procedure was particularly important due to the heavy psychological toll the loss of genitals takes on a patient.

"We are hopeful that these reconstructive techniques will allow us to alleviate the suffering and despair of those who have experienced devastating genitourinary injuries and are often so despondent they consider taking their own lives," Dr. Curtis Cetrulo, one of the two surgeons who performed the procedure, said in a statement.

In the same statement, Manning thanked the doctors and said he hoped other patients needing similar surgeries would be more likely to receive organ donations as a result of his successful operation.

"Today I begin a new chapter filled with personal hope and hope for others who have suffered genital injuries, particularly for our service members who put their lives on the line and suffer serious damage as a result," Manning said.

Doctors in South Africa became the first to perform the procedure successfully in 2014 after they attached a penis to a 21-year-old man whose organ had been amputated following a botched circumcision. REUTERS

Occupation of Catholic church to end after 12 years

The occupation of a Massachusetts Roman Catholic church to prevent its closure will end now that the Supreme Court has declined to hear the case brought by people who have held their ground for 12 years, the Friends of St. Frances Xavier Cabrini said on Monday.

"We made this deal with the lower courts that we would vacate the premises within 14 days of the Supreme Court decision," said Jon Rogers, a leader of the Friends' group. "From the very beginning we have promised to exhaust every avenue of appeal available to us and we have now done that."

The occupation dates back to the early days of the U.S. clergy sex abuse scandal when the Archdiocese of Boston decided to close and sell some 70 churches to cover its legal costs.

Rogers said the parishioners would hold a farewell celebration at the church in Scituate, about 25 miles southeast of Boston, on Sunday, May 29, and end their occupation.

Patricia McCarthy holds vigil at St. Frances Xavier Cabrini Church. GETTY IMAGES

Working in shifts since 2004, the group of about 100 people have maintained a constant presence in St. Frances Xavier Cabrini Church, which was built in the 1960s.

Initially, it was one of more than a dozen Boston-area Catholic churches occupied by parishioners, but the other groups either lost in the courts or abandoned their efforts.

They have held regular prayer services, but without the involvement of a priest the church did not offer Masses.

The parishioners contended that since their donations had paid for the church to be built, they were entitled to a say in its closing. The church is on 30 acres of waterfront land. Lower courts repeatedly rejected their reasoning and last year a state court ruled that the group was trespassing.

Terrence Donilon, a spokesman for the archdiocese, said in an email that the church was pleased with the court's decision. REUTERS

Verizon and striking unions set talks after meeting with US official

Verizon Communications and representatives from two striking unions will return to the negotiating table on Tuesday after a weekend meeting with U.S. Secretary of Labor Thomas Perez.

About 40,000 network technicians and customer service representatives in the company's Fios Internet, telephone and television services unit walked off the job in mid-April in the largest U.S. strike in recent years.

The two side have remained far apart on issues related to healthcare coverage, pensions and the off-shoring of call-center jobs.

Verizon Chief Executive Officer Lowell McAdam and union officials from the Communications Workers of America and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers met with Perez on Sunday at his request.

"The best way to resolve this labor dispute is at the bargaining table, and I am heartened by the parties' mutual commitment to get back to immediate discussions and work toward a new contract," Perez said in a statement issued Sunday night. REUTERS

RACE FOR THE WHITE HOUSE

Trump says unlikely to have good relationship with UK's Cameron

Cameron criticised Trump in the British parliament over his call for the ban on Muslims and suggested that he would unite Britain against him if he visited.

Donald Trump said he was unlikely to have a good relationship with David Cameron because the British prime minister cast the U.S. presidential candidate as "divisive, stupid and wrong" for proposing a temporary ban on Muslims entering the United States.

"It looks like we're not going to have a very good relationship, who knows?" Trump told Britain's ITV television station in an interview aired on Monday when asked how ties would fare if he won the U.S. presidential election on Nov. 8.

"Well number one, I'm not stupid, OK. I can tell you that right now. Just the opposite. Number Two, in terms of divisive: I don't think I'm a divisive person. I'm a unifier, unlike our president right now," Trump said, referring to Barack Obama.

Cameron's spokesman said the prime minister stood by his original comments.

The United States is Britain's closest ally. U.S. companies are the biggest foreign direct investors in Britain and the so-called special relationship with Washington has been the cornerstone of British diplomacy since World War II.

Trump's often controversial comments on everything from Muslims and women to the future of NATO and relations with Russia have drawn criticism from Berlin, Paris and other European capitals.

But neither Germany's Angela Merkel nor France's Francois Hollande have gone as far as Cameron in chiding Trump who, if he wins in November, would be in charge of the world's most powerful nation and largest economy from Jan. 20 next year.

"The PM has made his views on Donald Trump's comments very clear. He disagrees with them," the spokesman said. "He continues to believe that preventing Muslims from entering the U.S. is divisive, stupid and wrong. He stands by his comments."

The spokesman refused to answer questions on who Cameron would like to see win in November but said there was no telephone call or meeting planned with Trump, adding: "If one is proposed we will consider it." REUTERS

"Cameron will work with whoever is elected U.S. president and is committed to maintaining the special relationship."

Emilia Clarke is proud of her naked fire-walk

ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

"Game of Thrones" star Emilia Clarke had one of the more attention-grabbing scenes in the show's new season Sunday night when she emerged from a burning Dothraki temple completely untouched by the flames, with her clothes burned off. It was a triumphant moment for the character, and Clarke wants everyone to know that it was all her. "I'd like to remind people the last time I took my clothes off was Season 3," Clarke told Entertainment Weekly. "That was a while ago. It's now Season 6. But this is all me, all proud, all strong. I'm just feeling genuinely happy I said 'Yes.' That ain't no body double." And at least this time, unlike her fire walk from the end of Season 1, she got to do it on a closed set indoors. So there's that. "Taking off my clothes is not the easiest thing, but with the magic of the effects, I don't have to do a Season 1 and go on a cliff and do it," she said. "I'm in control of it."

Beyonce facing sweatshop controversy

Come on, Ivy Park workers, now let's get in formation. Or that's what I assume they say at the Sri Lankan factory where Beyonce's chic new activewear line is reportedly put together by underpaid workers pulling 60-plus hour weeks, according to the Sun. The newspaper reports that seamstresses at the MAS Holdings factory — which also assembles clothing for Top Shop — make just $6 a day for their efforts. "When they talk about women and empowerment, this is just for the foreigners," one worker says. "They want the foreigners to think everything is OK." That's cold, Bey.

Shocker: Angelina Jolie no fan of Donald Trump

Angelina Jolie was in London on Monday to talk about migration and refugee issues, so naturally the subject of Donald Trump came up. When Jolie was first asked about the Donald, she "closed her eyes and shook her head in disapproval," according to CNN, which is really all she needed to say. But when pressed on the presumptive GOP nominee and his stance on temporarily banning Muslims from entering the U.S., she felt compelled to elaborate. "To me, America is built on people from around the world coming together for freedoms, especially the freedom of religion," she said. "So it's hard to hear this coming from someone who is pressing to be an American president." Jolie has yet to endorse a presidential candidate, but at least we know who she's not endorsing.

Sharon sends Ozzy to sex rehab

Sure, Sharon and Ozzy Osbourne played nice for the cameras in their first public appearance since his cheating scandal made news last week, but that doesn't mean all is well and good in the house that Black Sabbath built. In fact, Sharon is reportedly demanding that Ozzy check himself into the same fancy sex addiction rehab facility that Tiger Woods patronized. "It's true Sharon has spoken to a divorce lawyer, and she is still mad as hell," a source tells the Sunday Express. "But she believes they can eventually recover from this if he is prepared to get proper help." And I guess the proper help is at the Pine Grove facility in Hattiesburg, Mississippi. Man, Mississippi this time of year? Definitely sounds like a punishment.

Alonzo Bodden says Ted Cruz supporters don't laugh

"I can still throw in a line or two about Ben Carson or Cruz, but no one cares about Chris Christie."

RACHEL RACZKA
@rachelraczka
rachel.raczka@metro.us

Comedian Alonzo Bodden draws much of his material from the news — so needless to say, he's got a lot to work with. The Queens native took home the grand prize for the third season of "Last Comic Standing" and is a regular on NPR's "Wait Wait Don't Tell Me." He also hosts his own current events comedy podcast ("Who's Paying Attention") and his second special for Showtime, "Historically Incorrect," aired in February.

Bodden comes to Laugh Boston for three nights of shows this week. We chat with him about the election and what you can't make fun of in Boston.

Since this election we're going into is so divided, are there any topics, cultural or political, that you can't touch on in your act?
Not really, because as long as it's funny, audiences don't mind. I was in North Carolina two weeks ago and I hammered them on the transgender issues. For one thing, comedy club audiences tend to be more open minded and Ted Cruz people don't laugh, so they're not going to shows. It's not something I worry about because the greatest comics are the most opinionated. Lewis Black and George Carlin aren't sitting back and thinking, "I hope I didn't upset anyone."

Does anything go over an audience's heads? How many news references can you fit in there before not everyone gets it?
I have more time to waste reading the news than most people so I may have to educate audiences on a particular story or bill during my act. For instance, I joked about Oregon legalizing marijuana and the difference between recreational marijuana and medicinal. The only difference is you have to pay a doctor $30 and tell them your leg hurts.

What did the people of Oregon think of the joke?
Portland loved it. They love when you make fun of Portland. They love when you make fun of anything about them, except the Trail Blazers.

What topics can't you touch in Boston?
You guys are very sensitive about the Red Sox but that's about it. When I first worked in Boston, coming from New York City, I thought I'd have issues because Boston won two World Series and [New York] won 26, and somehow that's supposed to be the same. See — that joke might get me killed. [Editor's note: The Red Sox have won eight World Series, the Yankees have won 27.]

How difficult is it to change your subject matter based on the news cycle?
I can still throw in a line or two about Ben Carson or Cruz, but no one cares about Chris Christie. Like if something happens like Larry Wilmore drops the n-word at the White House Correspondents dinner, I have to talk about it, but then a lot of my jokes aren't polished because I don't have the time. I'll mix them in with things that are more evergreen that are continuously funny to make that bit much better.

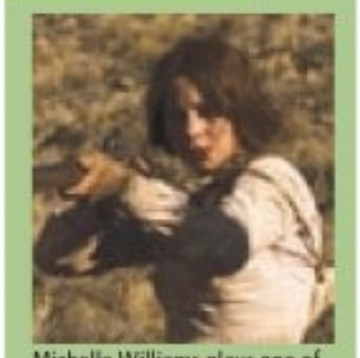
"SPECIAL CORRESPONDENTS"

Eric Bana and Ricky Gervais have so-so banter in the latter's Netflix movie "Special Correspondents." NETFLIX

This column tends to be about things you should watch on Netflix. But Ricky Gervais' latest attempted movie film is too big too ignore, and we're sorry to report it's another depressingly toothless slog from a talent who sometimes has nothing but fangs. Like "The Invention of Lying," Gervais takes a rich, nasty subject — here, two radio journos (Gervais and Eric Bana) who have to fake reports from war-torn Ecuador after they miss their flight — and does next to nothing with it. Even the banter between the stars is on autopilot. Only Vera Farmiga, as a borderline-sexist harpy profiting from Gervais' plight, manages more than a faint smile.

"MEEK'S CUTOFF"



Michelle Williams plays one of a group of people stuggling to relocate out West in Kelly Reichardt's indie "Meek's Cutoff." OSCILLOSCOPE LABORATORIES

Your relatively small big-screen TV — or, ye gods, your laptop — is no place to view Kelly Reichardt's hyperminimalist indie Western. It's a film lousy with drawn-out stretches of not much at all: an all-star cast of Manifest Destiny types plodding exhausted across arid landscapes on loud, rickety wagons, perhaps never to arrive at anything but an early death. In a theater, where one's attention is more likely to be drawn to the screen, it's hypnotic. At home, there's always your phone. So, if you must, draw the drapes, kill your lights and your gizmos, and drink in the beautiful despair.

Meditation goes mainstream in the classroom

Meditation can have a positive effect concentration and focus throughout the day. ISTOCK

Activities to promote focus, emotional wellness and mindfulness are becoming increasingly common in schools.

ALIZAH SALARIO
@Alirosa
alizah.salario@metro.us

As soon as former public school teacher Dave Beal introduced meditation to his students, he saw dramatic changes in his classroom.

"Test anxiety was the No. 1 reason students underperform. So I saw a lot of improvement that way," says Beal. "You know, particularly the stereotype of the fidgety boy who can't sit still, when they start to learn breathing techniques and [start] connecting with their body and quieting their mind, they're just able to maintain a higher level of concentration throughout the day."

The experience prompted Beal to switch gears and devote himself to teaching meditation full-time. He's now an education coordinator at Brain Education, a company that partners with school districts around the country and leads workshops for students and teachers on activities that promote focus, emotional wellness and mindfulness.

"We do lot of dynamic, high-energy exercises, because I think for adults as well as kids, the concept of meditation is just sitting quietly and trying to empty your mind, and that can be a frustrating project for some people in this fast-paced world," says Beal.

Mindfulness in the classroom is part of a growing trend, and there are countless techniques to pick from. But Brain Education takes a unique approach: Getting kids to slow down by first speeding up.

"[We lead] physical exercises, partner games, and the students open up and are having fun, and releasing some of the pent-up tension from trying to sit at their desks. Then, after they kind of open up that way, they're able to sit down quietly and focus on their breathing," says Beal.

A mental exercise kicks off the process.

"Kids are very visual and very imaginative, so we have what we call the 'energy-ball visualization.' They imagine they're creating a ball of energy with their hands, so it gives them something very tangible to focus on," says Beal, who notes that helping students tune their awareness into their physical sensations, like heat or tingling in their hands, is part of how instructors facilitate the process.

"Once they really have a little glimmer of a feeling of inner peace, once they feel that first sensation, then that motivates them to keep going. Then, after those first couple of times, it just becomes really automatic," says Beal.

The group meditation is designed to help students self-regulate whenever they feel distraction or anxiety creeping in. The goal is twofold, says Beal: To have students empty their minds of the busy thoughts, and then focus on their goals.

As for naysers who think mindfulness isn't necessary for kids?

"Honestly, I think kids and adults alike, we actually crave this time," says Beal. "They're kind of hungry for this."

WHEN SCHOOLS SAY THEY OFFER STUDENT SUPPORT, WHAT DO THEY MEAN?

It could mean a lot of different things. At Bay State College it means we understand that going back to school is a big decision. And, it means we understand your concerns about succeeding at the college level. That's why, regardless of how you see yourself doing in college, we see an opportunity to help you realize your potential with a community of support.

What else does it mean? It means that admissions counselors can show off our campus, answer your questions and guide you through our selection process—even before you apply. It means helping 95 percent of this year's freshman class receive grants or scholarships that don't have to be repaid. It means personal success coordinators and a closely-knit student body that can help make America's biggest college town feel a little more like home.

In the classroom, it means a wide variety of Associates and Bachelor's degree programs in such in-demand fields as healthcare, business, fashion, criminal justice and more. No matter which program you choose, it means learning in small classes from accessible professors with real-world experience in their field.

To fit your schedule, it means making classes available at night or online.

As you advance toward your degree, it means having a personal career advancement team. It means helping you write cover letters and resumes, creating mock job interviews and using social media to help you get noticed. It means internships at some of Boston's best companies and organizations to build working relationships with people that can help you find a full-time position doing what you love.

In the end, what does it all mean? It means that at Bay State College, we care as much about your comfort as we do your success. It means we're committed to providing you unmatched student support throughout your college journey. It means that going back to school doesn't mean going it alone.

In short, it means Bay State is the right choice for you.

As opioid epidemic grows in Massachusetts, innovative Cambridge College program focuses on preparing teachers to help find school-based solutions

The statistics are sobering. According to the latest figures from Massachusetts Department of Health and Human Services, the number of opioid overdose deaths in 2014 rose to 1,173 – the highest they have been since 2000.

And the crisis does not show any signs of abating. Indeed, if it follows trends predicted by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, the numbers will only continue to grow. Opioids, which include heroin as well as prescription drugs such as oxycodone, are known to be highly addictive and very difficult to quit.

Cambridge College School of Education is poised to respond and play a key role in helping prevent opioid addiction by offering initial and professional licensure programs to train teachers in providing skills-based health education in PreK-Grade 12 school systems.

"The road to addiction is a very gradual progression that often starts very early," says Mary Connolly, C.A.G.S. Chair of Cambridge College School of Education's Health and Family & Consumer Education Program. "For most, it starts when they are young, so our prevention should begin early in schools to be most effective. For that reason, it is so important to make sure health education teachers are able to get the skills-based education they need to help prevent this epidemic at the PreK-12 levels.

"What Cambridge College School of Education is offering is really unique in terms of training health education teachers and ensuring they have the knowledge and the tools to teach school-age students how to reduce risky behavior, improve personal health, and increase academic performance learning skills and tools – rather than just hearing information about drugs. Also, the teachers we train become leaders in the fight against substance abuse in their own school systems."

This innovative program is just one of the programs offered by Cambridge College School of Education. The school has a proven track record of success with over more than 20,000 alumni working in the field of education. Learn more about the exciting opportunities in education by attending the Cambridge College School of Education's upcoming Information Session on May 19th at 6pm in Cambridge. Should your kids be taking probiotics?

MAKE HEALTHY YOUR NEW HAPPY

Find out what the latest research has to say.

EMILY LAURENCE
@EmLaurence
emily.laurence@metro.us

The health community has been buzzing about the importance of probiotics for a while, and new studies confirming the health benefits of this good bacteria seem to make the news every week. Millions of adults pop a probiotic pill daily to do everything from keep their digestive system on track to ward off liver cancer.

But what about kids? Do they need a supplement, too? For Julie Smolyansky, the CEO of Lifeway Foods, it's a resounding yes. Smolyansky released a probiotic for kids, ProBugs, in 2014 based on the scientific findings that started emerging — and continue to emerge. We talk to her about the benefits of probiotics for kids and why their diets might not be enough.

It's good for the brain

Smolyansky tells us that there's a huge mind-body connection when it comes to probiotics, and kids are no exception. "The gut is the second organ of the body filled with the most neurons, after the brain, and the brain and gut are constantly sending messages to each other," she says. That means feelings like anxiety, stress and depression can affect your digestive system. A new study published in the Pediatric Research journal found that this brain-body connection could help prevent ADHD and autism.

The study followed 75 infants for 13 years. Some took probiotics as infants and children, some took a placebo. At age 13, 17 percent of the children in the placebo group were diagnosed with ADHD or autism. As for the probiotic group: zero.

Gives a weak immune system a boost

It's no shocker that kids get sick all the time, and Smolyansky tells us that an unfortunate side effect of taking antibiotics is that they kill off the good bacteria in the gut, too.

"Probiotics can help counter that, but also, it helps give them a stronger immune system so they don't get sick [as much] in the first place," she says. "New research is showing how important it is to build an immune system early on in life. Baby formulas have actually started including probiotics," she says, adding that it's naturally in breast milk.

How to get your kids to take them

Most kids aren't big sauerkraut and kimchi fans, but yogurt is a great staple to add to your kids' diet. And there's also of course Smolyansky's on-the-go snack ProBugs, which comes in kid-friendly flavors like creamsicle and strawberry-banana. Probiotic brand Culturelle also sells packets that can be mixed in with kids' foods, so resourceful parents can sneak them into their food. However, if your kids consume 'em, it will do their little bodies good.

4 HEALTH & BEAUTY PRODUCTS YOU SHOULD TOSS TODAY!
Brought to you by the beauty consultants at CARE Laser

Our CARE Laser team is passionate about keeping up with the best new developments in health and beauty. But, sometimes we forget to purge outdated products. This can actually be hazardous to our health! Passé items don't just go out-of-style; they can become unsafe even for occasional use. Here are 4 things we've uncovered in our make-up bags, closets, and home gyms that are definitely obsolete, and potentially dangerous:

Toxic Nail Polish: Remember as a kid hearing that if you left a Twinkie on your porch rail for 30 years, that your porch rail would be gone, but the Twinkie would still be there, and edible? It amazed us as kids, but as adults it sounds pretty gross. What does this have to do with nail polish you ask? Well, according to Cosmopolitan magazine, nail polish is actually considered the Twinkie of the beauty world. Not a compliment! Some nail polish is preserved with formaldehyde, toluene and/or dibutyl phthalate, which have been shown to cause cancer and reproductive complications. Check your nail polish today and toss immediately if it has any of these ingredients. Then, search your local natural foods store for polish that is much safer, kid-friendly, odorless, and easy to remove.

Tight Clothes: They're a pain to get in and out of, and yet we continue to buy into the trend of tight clothes - skinny jeans, corsets, cinch belts, body shapers. But, in the name of our health, we should reconsider our form-fitting attire. Both TIME Magazine and the Wall Street Journal reported multiple cases of people going to their Doctor complaining of limb numbness, digestive issues, low back pain, trouble breathing, lightheadedness, headaches, and blurred vision. There was no strange virus going around; just a proliferation of tight clothing causing nerve compression that led to these painful symptoms. Trying to look slim and stylish shouldn't come at a cost to our health, so loosen your belts, opt out of skinny jeans, and toss those control top hose!

Infomercial Exercise Products: Of course we all want "a tonier tummy in weeks," our extra fat "wiggled and jiggled" off, and a more "defined waistand shapelier behind". Exercise systems like the Abdominizer, the Vibration Belt Machine, the Ab Flex, and the Hula Chair seem so promising in the commercials. But once again we learn that if it sounds too good to be true, it probably is. In actuality, these machines end up being torture devices that waste our time, money and energy. Our CARE Laser team agrees, it's time to clear out your outdated machines. Better to consult with a fitness expert about the proper equipment, machines and workouts to meet your individual needs and goals.

Hair Removal Gizmos & Gadgets: Go ahead, dig out all of your daily hair removal tools. If your household is like most others, then you have multiple razors, shaving creams, tweezers, and containers of wax, depilatory cream, or bleach. If you have a higher than average pain tolerance, maybe you're even trying to remove hair with an at-home laser device. Take a good look at all these gizmos and gadgets; do these things look like modern technology or medieval torture devices? Do they look safe, easy and comfortable to use or more likely to elicit pain and harbor danger? And yet, these are the very things that you trust daily to remove hair from your sensitive, delicate skin. If you've experienced redness, inflammation, razor burn, ingrown hairs, burns, bruises, or infection after shaving, waxing or bleaching, these very tools are the reason! Free yourself from all of this junk, not to mention the time, effort and money of constantly removing body hair. Trust us Bostonians, it is going to feel great! Join the CARE Laser team and thousands of people around the globe in revolting against the daily grind and perils of shaving, waxing, and plucking.

To enjoy safe, effective, affordable and virtually pain-free hair removal, call CARE Laser Boston for a FREE consultation: 617-338-5188.

David Price will look for his second-straight strong performance this week as the Red Sox take on the Royals in Kansas City. GETTY IMAGES

Price will be tested against Kansas City

David Price will get the ball and David Ortiz will look to stay red-hot against the Royals Tuesday night.

MATT BURKE
@burke_metro
matthew.burke@metro.us

This is exactly why the Red Sox shelled out a cool $217 million for David Price.

The lefty will have to earn his money Tuesday (8:15 p.m., NESN) on the road against the defending World Series champion Royals as the Red Sox look to sustain their hot streak.

Price seemed to have solved the hitch in his pitching motion last Thursday against the Astros as he struck out 12 Houston batters in an 11-1 Red Sox win.

"I allowed myself to get into my power position," Price said. "It's something I worked on for four days leading up to this start. It was a big key for me and it helped out a lot."

The Astros are far from world-beaters this season, but Houston did show it could at least score against the Red Sox last weekend. The Astros scored 21 runs in the final three games of the series at Fenway. It makes Price's effort last Thursday — against a good lineup — that much more impressive.

The sign of a true ace, however, is an ability to string along strong starts. Price hasn't had back-to-back strong outings this season despite high strikeout totals and a 5-1 record. It would be nice to see his ERA at least get back under 5.00 as well as it currently sits at 6.00.

Kansas City will bring its A-game Tuesday for sure as it is looking to kick its title hangover from last season. The Royals were just 18-19 on the season entering Monday night's series opener in Missouri. Ian Kennedy (4-3, 3.25 ERA) is slated to get the ball for the Royals.

The sensational David Ortiz

Seven years ago, it looked as though David Ortiz's career was over. He didn't hit his first home run that year until May 20 and he owned a .203 batting average entering that game. He has had monster seasons since that time, but the start to this season has been something else altogether.

Ortiz is batting .320 (ranked 18th in MLB) so far this season, he has 10 home runs (12th in MLB), 33 RBIs (third in MLB) and owns a sensational 1.101 OPS (first in MLB).

Celtics in need of lotto luck

Isaiah Thomas will be representing the Celtics at the NBA Draft Lottery tonight (8 p.m., ESPN). The Celtics have the third-best odds (15.6 percent) at landing the top overall pick and a 46.9 percent chance at landing a top-three pick, courtesy of them owning the Brooklyn Nets' pick. GETTY IMAGES

Aries A change in your financial situation looks promising. Don't let anyone speak or negotiate on your behalf. You will represent what you have to offer better than anyone.

Taurus Avoid arguments if you want to accomplish your goals. Staying focused and being open to new things will result in firm progress.

Gemini Look closely at a proposal that offers the impossible. You are better off doing your own thing and taking responsibility for the outcome.

Cancer If you offer to help someone from your past, you will establish a better, more promising relationship. Make adjustments to your timetable that give you greater freedom.

Leo Don't waste time criticizing others or complaining about the way they do things. Step up your game and take charge to ensure that you get the results you want.

Virgo Open up about the way you feel and how you want to see projects and situations develop. Taking care of children, loved ones or your personal needs should be your aim.

Libra Don't be afraid to share your emotions. The only way to resolve a festering situation is to communicate honestly. Find out where you stand, and act accordingly.

Scorpio A personal relationship will develop into something special. Make plans to share interesting experiences. Discuss alternate living arrangements or an unorthodox path.

Sagittarius Keep your communications honest and factual. If you choose to embellish instead of sticking to facts, you'll end up paying for your indiscretions.

Capricorn Consider how you currently live and how you want to live in the future. Cut corners, downsize or look for investments that will allow you more freedom. Do things differently.

Aquarius You are best off disregarding criticism or complaints. Strive to make personal changes and work to get ahead professionally. Invest in your health, skills and personal assets.

Pisces You may need to step outside your comfort zone if it will help find a solution to a problem. Don't be afraid to speak up and offer your services for a price. EUGENIA LAST is always our way.

Can a bank still surprise you? We think so.

We could tell you about the time our bankers visited a hospital to notarize a form, or mailed a debit card to a customer in Spain. About the handwritten notes, opening after hours – all the small things that add up to something bigger.

We could tell you lots of stories – but instead, stop on by and let's create new ones together. Let us show you what great service feels like.

Come visit us, call 888-493-2783*, or go to* WebsterBank.com to learn more. We're here for you 24/7.
